BEFORE THE BATTLE

Both Sides are Now Claiming the Victory.

A Large Force of Men Necessary to Hold Down a Big Gnasher Near Barbourville.

PRESIDENT LEAVES CAPITOL

THE SITUATION.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The congressional election is a tossup. Both sides are making victorious claims, but neither side knows much about the actual condition. The same words describe the situation in New York state.

MUCH OIL FLOWING.

Barbourville, Nov. 3.—A large force of men was kept at work all day yesterday plowing and ditching the land around the Big Byrley oil gusher to prevent the escaping oil catching fire. A big stream of escaping oil has flooded Richland creek and extended several miles down stream.

THE PRESIDENT

LEAVES TO VOTE.

Washington, Nov. 3.—President Roosevelt arrived here from his trip to Virginia at 11:15 o'clock this forenoon and at 1:45 o'clock left for New York.

PASSED BALTIMORE.

Baltimore, Nov. 3.—The president's special train passed through here on Pennsylvania railroad at 12:38 p. m. en route to New York, where he goes to vote.

WHO JUDGE SIMS IS FOR.

Rowling Green, Nov. 3.—Judge James Sims authorizes an emphatic denial of the story in the Courier-Journal that he is for Rhea and Settle. He says he is for Hon. McKenzie Moss and denounces the Courier-Journal story as false.

AGAINST HEALTH BOARD

An Important Opinion Rendered by Judge Lightfoot.

Gives the County Board of Health a Black Eye in Vaccination Cases.

County Judge R. T. Lightfoot this morning rendered an opinion in the case against Theo. Luttrell, charged with violating a state board of health law by refusing to have two children vaccinated. Luttrell is guardian of the children, whom he refused to have vaccinated after a state board of health officer had notified him to do so. He refused simply to test the case and this morning Judge Lightfoot decided against the state board of health. Judge Lightfoot has not fully drawn up his opinion, but says that he simply states that the state board of health cannot make laws and that the act giving them that power is unconstitutional. He will carefully prepare his decision and will publish it in the papers.

GAUGE IS ACCEPTED.

Mr. R. R. Jones of Cincinnati, government engineer, has accepted the new gauge recently completed here, and says it is a fine piece of work.

Mr. J. K. Greer, the insurance man, went to Cairo today on business.

MUCH FREIGHT LOST

Head-end Wreck on the Illinois Central Yesterday.

Two Thousand Dollars' Worth of Livestock Killed by the Crash—$30,000 loss.

A MISTAKE WAS THE CAUSE

The fast manifest freight trains Nos. 152 and 153 first sections, met in head-end collision midway between Krebs and Boaz Station Sunday morning at 6:30 o'clock, causing one of the most disastrous freight wrecks that has occurred on the Memphis division of the Illinois Central in some time.

No. 152 was north bound and was in charge of Conductor Larry Smith, Engineer H. L. Fowle and Fireman A. P. Alsbrook and No. 153 was south bound and in charge of Conductor Moring, Engineer Andrews and Fireman Gastin. They met on a curve at the foot of a hill and were running at the rate of about 25 miles an hour. Engineer Fowle was coming down the hill and working little steam while Engineer Andrews was ascending the hill with a full pressure of steam in the cylinders. Andrews had just come down a slight hill and had considerable speed when he struck the hill where he met the other train. Both engineers saw the danger at about the same time when they were within about a quarter of a mile from each other and with their firemen and brakemen and a young fireman just learning the road, they jumped. All escaped injury except Engineer Fowle who injured his left knee. The member was slightly cut and bruised in falling but will lay him up a few days only. He was brought to the hospital here and is now being treated.

The trains were both first class freights and had about equal rights. They were running on open orders knowing that no inferior trains would be in the way. It seems that Engineer Andrews of the south bound train had an order over the 52 as far as Mayfield white No. 52 had not been apprised of the order at all it is said. There were about 19 cars in the 152 and about the same number in the 153, but the latter train was composed of coal cars mainly.

No. 152 was made up of cattle, sugar and other produce which was scattered over the fields for some distance around. There were two cars of hogs and cattle and the loss to the stock alone is estimated at $2,000. The loss in the other freight will amount to several thousands, which with the $1,000 damages to the engines and the loss of the box cars, etc., will reach a total of about $25,000 to $30,000. There were four coal cars wrecked in No. 152 and nine in 153, among them being a cattle car. Out of several hundred head of hogs and cattle only two cows were taken out alive and but 37 hogs saved. The engines, Nos. 660 and 610, have been brought to the shops for repairs and will not be out for several weeks.

DRUGS IN THEIR DRINKS

SEVEN OLD SOLDIERS FOUND DEAD IN THEIR BEDS AFTER A NIGHT OUT.

Merion, Ind., Nov. 3.—The sudden death of seven old soldiers, members of the National Soldiers' Home in this city, has aroused the veterans' suspicion that all is not right. Within the past two weeks seven men have been found dead in their beds after a night of drinking at nearby saloons. Believing that drugs have been placed in the liquor a petition is now being circulated among the 3,500 members of the home to refrain from drinking for ninety days. Over 1,200 members signed the petition today. Robert Leavell and Benjamin Locke were found dead this morning.

AN EYE INJURED.

Walter, the 6 year old son of Mr. W. J. Hills of the N. O. and St. L. railroad, while playing yesterday morning accidentally stuck a knife in his right eye. The eye is seriously injured, but it is thought not permanently.

A FIENDISH DEED

Chicago Family Blown up by a Bomb Yesterday.

A Discarded Snitor Believed to Be Responsible for the Bloody Crime.

A SUSPECT UNDER ARREST

Chicago, Nov. 3.—A dynamite bomb the weapon of a deranged assassin, blew up the home of Joseph Kordeck, in Chicago Heights yesterday, killing two members of the family outright and injuring several others. The house was set on fire and burned, while that of a neighbor caught fire and was also destroyed.

The dead are: Joseph Kordeck, arms and legs blown off. Lucy Kordeck, two years old, body blown all to pieces.

The injured are: Mrs. Lucy Kordeck, flesh blown off, right side injured internally, may die. Seven children who escaped were injured but not seriously.

The explosion occurred while the family was asleep. The father and mother, with the daughter, Lucy, occupied a room in the front of the cottage. On the other side were rooms occupied by the rest of the family. The cottage stood two feet from the ground on wooden posts. The bomb was placed under the room occupied by the parents and the impact of the explosion tore a hole in the floor, blew the bed to pieces, dismembered Kordeck and scattered into fragments the body of Lucy, who was sleeping with her parents. Pieces of flesh the size of a man's head were the largest remnants of the child's body that could be found. The force of the explosion was directly upward and tore a piece of flesh from Mrs. Kordeck's side, and blew her through a window. The noise aroused the rest of the family and they had hardly time to escape from the flames, which soon destroyed the cottage. Kordeck's body, torn to shreds, was found in the debris, after the fire.

Charles Smith, a former boarder at the Kordeck house, who was paying attention to one of Kordeck's daughters, has been arrested, charged with the crime. The Kordeck girl was to have been married to another man next week. Smith declares that he is innocent, but neighbors declare that he made threats to them that if the girl refused to be his wife he would blow up the entire family with dynamite. Smith was absent from his room at the time of the explosion. His roommate, Thomas Kobolinski, claims that Smith returned to his room greatly excited after the explosion.

Dr. R. A. Whittle and family have arrived from Argentine Republic on a visit to Mr. Charles Graves, Mrs. Whittle's brother. They leave in a week for California and then return to South America.

IS TO REMAIN HERE

Rev. G. W. Briggs Will Devote the Year to Lecture.

His Home Will Be in Paducah—Lectures for Southern Lyceum Bureau.

GOOD NEWS TO FRIENDS

It will be good news to the many friends here of Rev. G. W. Briggs, pastor of the Broadway M.E. church, to learn that although he is shortly to enter a new field of work, his home will remain in Paducah.

Rev. Briggs, in response to many inquiries made of him, makes the following statement:

To the Editor of The Sun:—My Dear Sir: In response to inquiries, not only from the newspapers, but from my friends in Paducah and elsewhere, I desire to say: That it is my purpose to devote the coming year to lecture, evangelistic and temperance work. The Southern Lyceum Bureau of Louisville, Ky., will have control of my lecture work; while all temperance work will be under the auspices of the State Prohibition committee. My home will be in Paducah, whose people have endeared themselves to me in a way never to be forgotten. And I desire to add that any service I can render this city at any time, as a clergyman or a citizen, will be a labor of love.

Yours very truly,

G. W. BRIGGS.

CIRCUIT COURT

SUIT FOR $1,000 DAMAGES IS NOW ON TRIAL.

The case of Norman, Myles and Co., a Louisville tobacco firm, against T. Herndon and others, of the city, for the recovery of about $1,000 in advances on tobacco shipments, was brought to trial this morning in circuit court.

Mr. Herndon, it is alleged, bought tobacco for the plaintiffs who made advances on the amount of tobacco shipped. From the allegations in the petitions the defendants did not ship as much tobacco as was paid for in advances, and the suit was brought to recover the alleged $1,000 in advances. This afternoon evidence is being heard in the case.

TRAVELING MAN DEAD

MR. THOMAS J. GILL DIES IN LOUISVILLE.

Mr. Thomas J. Gill, aged 33, a well known traveling man who frequently came to Paducah, died at Louisville Saturday after a two months illness. He leaves a wife and one child, and a wide circle of friends. He traveled for Meyer, Brides and Co., and sold woodenware. The funeral took place today.

DAUGHTERS SAW IT

Act of a Brutal Kentuckian Arouses Much Indignation.

Kicked His Little Son to Death and Threatened to Kill Others If They Told.

WAS CAUGHT IN THE WOODS

Inez, Ky., Nov. 3.—Pleasant Spradling, held for killing his 4 year old son and his 15 year old daughter, is threatened with lynching. Spradling's family consisted of wife, three daughters and son. With his daughters and boy the father was herding sheep last Friday. The boy was unable to keep up with the others. The father placed him on a stone beside a spring, telling him to wait until his return. The boy, becoming tired of sitting still, began to peel the loose bark off a tree that overhung the spring. Presently the father returned and noticing the bark on the ground, asked the boy who had done it. The boy replied that he had. "I would rather have you dead than raise you to destroy everything on the farm," is the reply the father is said to have made and then, it is charged, he picked up a stone and struck the boy on the head, knocking him down. Then, it is alleged, he kicked the prostrate boy in the head until he had killed him, and, turning to his daughters, threatened them with a like fate if they ever told what had occurred. Afterward he went home and said the boy, while chasing sheep, had run against a tree and killed himself.

Becoming alarmed, he took his eldest daughter and went to the mountains. His wife hired neighbors to bury the body of the child and then went to the home of Judge E. Hensley. She told him of the death of her son and said she suspected her husband, and added that at different times he had threatened to kill the whole family. The judge took her, with her two younger daughters, to his home, and presented the case to the grand jury. One of the little girls told the jury that her father had kicked the boy to death. Shortly afterward a sheriff's posse captured Spradling in the mountains, but his eldest daughter was not with him.

She turned up yesterday barefooted and ragged after her escape from her father in the mountains. She testified to how her father killed the boy, threatened her life and that of her mother.

SPANISH AND BRITISH.

VESSELS COLLIDE AND THE ENERO GOES DOWN.

London, Nov. 3.—The British steamer St. Regulus, Captain McMillen, from Shields for Alexandria, has put in at Gravesend. She reports having collided with and sunk the Spanish steamer Enero. Captain Delgado, from Huelva, Spain, October 22. With the exception of three members the crew of the Enero were drowned. The accident occurred Friday night off Dungeness.

The Enero was an iron steamer of 1,323 tons net register. She was 228 feet long and was built in 1899 at Newcastle on the Tyne. The Enero was owned by the Compania Bilbana de Navegacion of Bilbao. The captain of the St. Regulus says that when his vessel struck the Enero, he gave the order for full speed ahead with the idea of keeping the two vessels locked together and thus enabling the crew of the Spanish ship to board the St. Regulus but either they were too greatly alarmed to do so or they failed to understand his purpose, and instead of climbing on board the British ship, they tried to lower the boat with the result that a number were thrown into the sea and drowned. The Enero sank in a few minutes. The explosion of her boilers probably killed many other of her crew.

The St. Regulus was badly damaged, a large hole being stove in her stern.

Rev. J. D. Bow of Louisville returned home at noon today after a two weeks' revival meeting at the Second Baptist church.

JUSTICE BARBER

Was in a Head-ender Yesterday at Jackson, Miss.

Several Persons Hurt—Justice Barber Thrown Several Seats By Impact.

A LADY LOSES HER TEETH

Justice R. J. Barber, of the city, had a narrow escape from instant death yesterday afternoon at 12:50 as he was en route home from New Orleans, where he had been on a ten days' visit to his daughter, Mrs. J. J. Flynn.

He was on the fast passenger train No. 4, which is due here at 1:20 o'clock in the morning, and which takes the number 104 at Memphis. As the train was pulling into the suburbs of Jackson, Miss., a freight train ran into it, causing a very bad head-end wreck in which several were injured. Justice Barber was thrown over three seats and found himself in the aisle of the car when he awoke to the fact that there had been a "head ender."

The passenger occupying the seat just in front of him was so badly hurt that he did not regain consciousness until several hours later, and one woman had all her teeth knocked out by a collision with the seat in front of her.

Justice Barber found his eye glasses three seats ahead of the place where he was thrown and strange to say is not in the least sore this morning. He considers it a narrow escape. The cafe car, mail coach and both engines were totally wrecked and several cars in the freight trains were derailed and demolished. The delay to the train increased as it proceeded north and it arrived in the city at 6 o'clock this morning over five hours late.

Among the injured were: N. J. Roberts, of New Orleans, who was in the chair car. Two mail clerks, two dining car employees and eight members of the Frank Daniels Opera company were more or less bruised.

HE PAID DEARLY

Presidente in the Philippines Was Friendly to the Americans.

He Was Killed and His Wife Bled to Death, and Children Abducted.

Manila, Nov. 3.—A portion of a gang of Ladrones which has been operating on the island of Biliran, just north of the island of Leyte, where they committed various outrages, crossed over to the island of Leyte last Wednesday and entered a small town near Cartaguna. Here they captured and beheaded the presidente of the town, murdered his wife, whom they slashed with bolos, and then abducted the presidente's children. The motive of this crime is said to have been the presidente's friendliness with the Americans.

Ladrones are again active in the provinces of Rizal and Bulacan, Luzon. Members of the native constabulary engaged those bandits twice during the past week at points close to Manila and succeeded in killing a number of them. The constabulary are capable of suppressing these ladrones.

Reports received here indicate that the situation on the island of Samar is better than has been recently represented. A number of dolo dios, religious fanatics, are still operating, but officials report that the Samar police are able to handle the situation.

LOST HIS HOME.

Mr. H. O. Linsay of the American Express company this morning received word from his brother, Mr. W. E. Linsay of Greenville, Tex., that his home was recently burned with a loss of about $1,500. Mr. Linsay formerly lived here and is the business manager of a Greenville newspaper. His friends here will regret to learn of his loss.

MARRY AT FRANKFORT.

MISS ROSE ORITTENDEN AND MR. ELI BROWN TO WED SOON.

Frankfort, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Virginia Jackson Orittenden announces the engagement of her daughter, Rose McKnight, to Mr. Eli Brown, Jr., of Hardstown.

The marriage will be solemnized on December 17 at 6 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church.

Miss Orittenden is the daughter of the late John Allen Orittenden and is a niece of ex-Governor T. T. Orittenden of Missouri, Logan O. Murray of Louisville and David R. Murray, adjutant general of Kentucky. She is one of the most charming young ladies in Frankfort society.

Mr. Brown is the son of Judge Eli H. Brown of Owensboro and a nephew of the late Horace Stone of Nelson county, by whom he was reared. He is a practicing attorney of Bardonia, a member of the house of representatives and prospective candidate for speaker.

SUITS FILED AT MAYFIELD

IN NO COMBINE

Earlington, Ky., Nov. 3.—It is emphatically denied at the office of the St. Bernard Mining company that Mr. John B. Atkinson, president of that company, has anything to do with any coal deal for the combination of coal mines in the Western Kentucky coal mines, as was reported from Beaver Dam, Ky., yesterday. Mr. Atkinson was called east last night on account of the death of a relative, and could not be seen. Other statements in the report referred to are also incorrect. Mr. Atkinson does not own fourteen mines in Hopkins and Webster counties, as stated, but his company does own and operate several mines in Hopkins, and owns certain lands in Webster county, which have not been developed. There are other important errors of statement in the dispatch referred to which interest the people of this section. One of these is that Mr. Atkinson is the only operator in the entire Western Kentucky district who does not employ union labor. Outside of the St. Bernard Mining company there are six other operators in Webster and Christian counties, none of whom employ union labor. It is positively stated that Mr. Atkinson is not now, and has at no time been interested or taken any part in negotiations for the consolidation of his properties with any other properties in Western Kentucky or elsewhere.

CAN'T MANAGE THE OIL

Madisonville, Ky., Nov. 3.—The Croft Oil company, which has been operating for some time in Muhlenberg county, has one well that is 1,000 feet deep and is putting forth more oil than the company can manage. Tanks will be built at once, and another well that is now being sunk near the main gusher will soon be in operation.

Sturgis, Ky., Nov. 3.—G. M. Little, a wealthy and prominent farmer livery man and undertaker, has been sued in the sum of $5,000 by Claude Hill, a former employee, for the alienation of his wife's affections. The case will come up for trial in the circuit court next week.

VERDICT FOR LIFE IMPRISONMENT.

Princeton, Ky., Nov. 3.—The jury in the case of Arthur Jones rendered a verdict of life imprisonment after having the case eighteen hours. Jones was highly pleased with the verdict. He murdered a white section hand named Bowling, who was employed by the Illinois Central road.

SUITS FILED AT MAYFIELD.

Mayfield, Ky., Nov. 3.—J. Frank Sanderson has filed a divorce suit against his wife, Viola Sanderson now living in Paducah. The petition says they lived happily together until August 1901, when the defendant left without any cause. He also asks for the custody of the three children.

J. J. Shell, county physician, has filed suit in the circuit court for $1,456. The account, he alleges, is due him for 182 days services at $8 per day for attending to smallpox patients. The recent meeting of the fiscal court refused to allow the claim.

DEATH IN LIVINGSTON.

Smithland, Ky., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Belle Dunlap, wife of Mr. Ben Dunlap, who resides between here and Vicksburg, died suddenly Friday. A Springfield, Ill., telegram indicates that another railroad is to be built into Brookport. It says:

The secretary of state issued a charter to the St. Louis and East Shore Railroad company, with principal offices at East St. Louis. The purpose is to construct a line of road from East St. Louis south through the counties of Monroe and Randolph to Port Gage, Randolph county, and thence in a southeasterly direction through the counties of Jackson, Williamson, Gallatin and Gallatin to Shawneetown, Gallatin county; also from a point in Jackson county in a southeasterly direction through the counties of Williamson, Jackson and Massac to Brookport, Massac county; and from Brookport in a northeasterly direction through the counties of Pope and Hardin to Shawneetown. The incorporators and first board of directors are Z. W. Tucker, James A. Reardon and Arthur J. Fitzsimmons of St. Louis and Fred J. Kraft and Luther Robinson of East St. Louis.

TAR AND FEATHER ON CHURCH.

PEOPLE OF BRAZIL, IND., RESENT SEVERE CRITICISM OF AN EVANGELIST.

Brazil, Ind., Nov. 3.—Indignation is great here over the act of persons in spreading tar and feathers over the steps and doors of the west entrance of the elegant new M. E. church. Tar and feathers were also applied to a monster banner which was hung to the building announcing the revival meetings. The work was evidently done by persons who became indignant over the language used by Evangelist C. F. Barrett of Delaware, O., in his sermons. He vigorously denounced dancing and also reflected severely upon the morals of the people of Brazil. For such sentiments he has been sharply criticized. When informed of the deed Mr. Barrett said that in a great many towns people had threatened to tar and feather him, but this was the first time that he ever knew of any one taking their spite out on the church. He condemned the action and said he would have great deal rather it had happened to him.

MISTAKE OF THE ENGLISHMAN.

He Wanted Mucilage, but Asked the Young Woman for Gum.

The private secretary of a well-known publisher in the east is a young woman of refinement, both of conduct and of language. Brought up in New England and educated at a college famous for its attention to the niceties and elegance of existence she was as far removed as possible from the slang-using, bang-wearing, gum-chewing stereographer of the comic papers. Next door to the publisher's establishment a young Englishman, striving with moderate success to establish himself here as a landscape architect, had opened an office. In due course of time he became acquainted with the publisher, who, in turn, introduced him to the private secretary. One day when the private secretary was sitting serene and dignified at her desk, there entered precipitately the Englishman. "How do you do?" she said sweetly. "I beg your pardon," said the Englishman, "but could you spare me just a little of your gum?" "Gum!" she exclaimed in horror. "Surely you don't think I—" "Really, I beg your pardon," ejaculated the Englishman a second time, in still more confusion. "How stupid of me! I remember now you say mucilage in America."

Tattooed by Lightning.

The lightning bolt that struck a stall at the fair grounds in Macomb, Ill., on Sunday made of Ray Clupper a tattooed man, says an exchange. When the bolt fell Clupper was standing near a large black oak tree. He was rendered unconscious and came to screaming "fiel!" and "Murder!" After he recovered he kept complaining of a pain in the region of his stomach, directly under the watch pocket of his pants, in which he carried his watch at the time of the accident. He examined his watch and found it had been stopped. He found on his body a perfect photograph of the tree near which he was standing, limbs, leaves, of a bright red, and appears to be burned in the flesh. He suffered no ill effects from the shock in a short time after it occurred. At the fair one of the fakirs offered him $25 to let him exhibit him at the fair Thursday, but Clupper declined.

Novels for Minds Diseased.

Sir James Crichton Brown spoke strongly on the value of novel reading at the meeting of the Association of Asylum Workers, held yesterday at the Medical Society's rooms, Chandos street, says the London Telegraph. Were he, he said, an asylum doctor he would make it obligatory on every asylum nurse and attendant to read two standard novels every year, and from moderate excursions into these ideal realms they would return to the ward and workroom invigorated as from a trip to the seaside. He would like to see a list of the best hundred novels for asylum consumption, which should of course be entirely free from idiosyncrasy and insanity, a proviso which would, he feared, exclude most modern works.

Every Shoe Has Its Day.

SOME are very short, indeed.

Not so with Lendler & Lydon's, however. When you reckon the age of our shoes you use months and parts of years. They grow old gracefully, keeping their shapeliness, their easy wearing quality and style always.

We have one shoe here that is markedly noted for these qualities. 'Tis our popular price shoe for men. It's the outwearingest most comfortable, easy walking shoe the foot ever explored. 'Tis made expressly for us, expressly for the man who wants this price shoe

Mercury and Potash

ONLY SERVE AS A MASK FOR CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

They hide its repulsive form, and this serpent disease, stupefied by these drugs, lies dormant until the effects have worn off or treatment is discontinued, when it breaks down the mask and becomes as full of life and venom as ever. Mercury and Potash may dry up the sores and eruptions, but at the same time they drive the poison back into the blood and system, where it feeds upon the tender tissues, membranes and nerves, finally breaking out in most disgusting sores and even destroying the flesh and bones.

Mercury and Potash cannot accomplish a radical and permanent cure. They have a palliative but not curative effect upon this treacherous snake-like disease. These drugs produce mercurial Rheumatism, destroy the teeth and corrode the membranes of the stomach and bowels, causing inflammation and dyspepsia, nervousness and general derangement of the system.

S. S. S. is a Specific for Contagious Blood Poison, and the only antidote for the peculiar virus that spreads so quickly throughout the system, corrupting the blood and infecting every organ and fibre of the body.

S. S. S. destroys the serpent, and eliminates every atom of poison from the blood, it makes a thorough and radical cure of the disease, and at the same time builds up the general health. S. S. S. contains no minerals of any kind, but is a purely vegetable remedy and we offer $1.00 for proof to the contrary.

Write us about your case and our physicians will cheerfully advise without charge. Our home treatment book will be sent free to all who desire it.

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL.

PAYS $150,000 FOR LAND NEAR CHICAGO.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—The Illinois Central railroad has bought from the Pullman company a tract of 1,700 acres at Wildwood for $150,000. The tract lies just south of Kensington, and also south of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois and Illinois Central railroad crossing and comprises a strip of 600 feet long beside the Illinois Central's right of way. The newly purchased land will be used for additional terminal facilities.

Berlin, Nov. 3.—Emperor William today received William Stokes, of New York, in audience at the Potsdam palace. Mr. Stokes, who is well known in connection with the great interest which he takes in the Young Men's Christian Association in European countries, thanked his majesty for the telegram which the latter sent to the international Young Men's Christian Conference at Boston in 1901, and explained the methods and aspirations of the association. The emperor talked earnestly about the movement and said he intended to promote it in Germany.

MACHINISTS MAY STRIKE.

CHICAGO AND ALTON AND CHICAGO AND EASTERN ILLINOIS THE ROADS AFFECTED.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 3.—Two big railroad systems are threatened with a strike by machinists, boilermakers and other workmen employed in their repair shops and round-houses. The Chicago and Alton and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois are the roads and unless they sign an agreement with their men before the end of this week a strike probably will be called.

One thousand men will be thrown out of work if the railroads refuse to grant the demands of the union. Of these 650 are employed by the Chicago and Alton and 350 by the Chicago and Eastern Illinois. The majority of men who will be affected by the strike are employed in shops outside of Chicago, but nearly 100 of them are working in the Chicago round-houses of the two companies.

The demands of the machinists and boilermakers were made one year ago. They asked the payment of 31 1/2 cents an hour. They were receiving 26 cents an hour. A majority of the railroads entering Chicago, including the Illinois Central and the Chicago and Northwestern, have signed the agreement.

NO DECISION YET.

JUDGE ROBBINS TOOK TEN DAYS IN WHICH TO CONSIDER THE CASE.

Judge J. E. Robbins, of Mayfield, Saturday at the latter place heard arguments on a motion to dismiss the injunction against the election commissioners of Hickman county, preventing them from considering the contest filed by the saloon men of Fulton to set aside the recent election voting whiskey out of the town.

If Judge Robbins dissolves the injunction, the commissioners will try the case, and if he does not, the case will come before circuit court in January, and doubtless be taken to the court of appeals by whichever side loses. Attorneys Wheeler and Hughes, of the city represent the saloon men.

QUICK TELEGRAPHY.

50,000 WORDS AN HOUR CAN BE SENT BY RAPID SYSTEM.

London, Nov. 3.—Dispatches from Budapest announce that further improvements have been made in the system of rapid telegraphy which was first described a year ago. Telegrams are now transmitted from Pressburg to Budapest over one wire at the rate of from 50,000 to 70,000 words an hour. A Vienna newspaper describes a dispatch which it received by this process. It consisted of a strip of stiff parchment like paper bearing 230 words. There was an ordinary dash between the words, which were easily read. The message occupied 13 seconds in transmission.

Idea of School Boys.

One of the English papers gives the answers of certain board school boys who were asked to write down the whole or part of the chorus of "Rule Britannia." One of them gave the first line as "Royal British Tanager, Brick Tanager rules the way"; a second began it with "Rore Britanier," while a third attempted a whole verse. This was his version: "The nations not so blest has he but still in stern but still stern to God most all this was the Chatter the Chatter of the stall and God in Angles sang the Straag Buhlatanya blatanys waves the waves for Britains sever will be slain."

FRIGHTENED BY CIRCUS LION.

An Old Railroad Engineer in the West Tells of a Night Ride.

Dan Bechtel, of Brookfield, tells a story about a night ride he once took with a loose lion, which, as he says, tends to "make the gooseflesh creep a little." Bechtel for fourteen years was an engineer on the Hannibal & St. Joseph railroad. One night in 1888 he left Macon for Shelbyville, his engine pulling the Wallace shows. It was very dark, and he had orders not to run faster than fifteen miles an hour. Bechtel says he was "kidding" the fireman and head brakeman about what would happen if some of the wild animals should get loose, when he looked up and saw an old lion on top of the cars, moving slowly and gingerly toward the engine.

"When the brakeman and fireman realized what was coming," says Bechtel, "they made a dive for the cab door, and were soon riding on the front of the engine. The firebox was open and that kept him back, as he did not seem to know what to make of the bright dazzling light. I had a whistle that would scare ghosts, but it did not phase the lion. We soon began to lose steam and the train had to slow down. When we reached Shelbyville Conductor Pratt came up, making a big kick because we had been going slow. I pointed to the first car, and Pratt quickly retreated.

"The train soon came and took the big fellow to his cage. He had found a loose lar, which he worked out. With the fireman and brakeman on the front end and the show people and Conductor Pratt on the rear end, it seemed as if the lion was getting too close. I thought of all the mean things I ever did, and held to the throttle and let the engine go as fast as she would with what steam I still had on."—Kansas City Journal.

EVILS OF MODERN SOCIETY.

English Writer Rebuked Extravagance of Fast Set.

That Englishwomen by their extravagance are all too surely basing individual if not national bankruptcy, is the opinion of a writer in one of the English papers, who further declares:

"There has seldom been a time in the history of our country when women of all classes dressed with more ill-considered extravagance than in the present day, and rarely a period when fathers and husbands were less able to cope with the increased demand on their banking accounts. Various causes have combined to induce this recklessness in dress expenditure. It is in some way attributed to the large influx into English society of women from the United States, where so widely different a standard of taste prevails in regard to the display of worldly wealth, more particularly when applied to personal adornment. Also it may be partly due to the reaction following the 'plain living and high thinking' that was the keynote to the teaching of such men as Carlyle and Ruskin—the simplicity that became a fashionable cult when the influence of these men was first making itself felt throughout the land. But whatever the reason, the result is to be deplored, since beauty, no less than suitability, is being sacrificed in this modern craving after novelty."

A Socialist-Cremationist.

M. Gallen, the old gentleman who has left all his fortune, amounting to about 10,000,000 francs, to the French government, was a member of the Society for the Encouragement of Cremation, to which he has bequeathed 30,000 francs. In his will he naturally stipulated that his body should be cremated, and in addition that it should be conveyed to the cemetery in a hearse of the fifth class, the only mourner to be the secretary of the society. M. Gallen further stated that his ashes should be placed in a receptacle similar to those used by the very poor.

Heart Trouble Baffled Doctors.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nerve Cure Me.

There is nothing more necessary to health than sleep and rest. If these are denied you, if you rise in the morning more tired than when you went to bed, there is an affection of the nerves plainly present. If your heart is weak, or there is an inherited tendency in that direction, your weakened nerves will soon affect your heart's action as to bring on serious, chronic trouble. Dr. Miles' Nerve is a nerve tonic, which quickens the nerves, so that sleep may come, and it quickly restores the weakened nerves to health and strength. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is a great blood and heart tonic which regulates the action of the heart, enriches the blood and improves the circulation.

"Some time ago I was suffering severely with heart trouble. At times my heart would seemingly stop beating and at others it would beat loudly and very fast. Three to four hours sleep each night in ten months was all I could get. One week in last September I recovered myself. I got Dr. Miles' Nerve and Heart Cure as a drug store in Lawrenceburg, after spending $300.00 in medicines and doctors in Louisville, Shelbyville, Frankfort, Cincinnati and Lawrenceburg, and in three days have derived more benefit from the use of your remedies than I got from all the doctors and their medicines. I think everybody ought to know of the marvelous power contained in your remedies."—W. H. HUGHES, Fox Creek, Ky.

BY WAY OF EXPLANATION.

Dr. J. D. Smith is out in a dodger concerning the proposition of the water company to be voted on tomorrow. Like other things sprung on the eve of election, it is misleading and a flagrant misrepresentation of facts. For this reason, when a copy of it was received at this office it was set aside. It is presumed for similar reasons it was treated likewise at the other newspaper offices. In discussing the doctor's address to the public, it should be stated at the outset that the most important question to be decided is, Does Dr. Smith know more about the waterworks proposition and whether it is a good one for the city and people, than the mayor, board of councilmen and aldermen, Commercial club, and most of our best business men? If he does not, then what he says should not receive the earnest consideration of any thinking man. If he does, the others ought to retire from public life or seek the rural regions, where the environments would perhaps be more appropriate.

Dr. Smith starts off by saying that to vote for the waterworks ordinance "will tie the hands of our city for years to come by entering into a contract for virtually an indefinite period. This means a sellout on the water question." Now a vote for the waterworks ordinance means nothing of the kind. It is not a contract for Advertising being an essential of modern business, it is most important that the advertiser keep a record of its value to him. All business men are careful to note what their advertising costs them, but they neglect too much the keeping track of the yield of the advertising. It will pay any advertiser to keep as accurate a record as possible of the productiveness to him of every newspaper in which he advertises. This record should be systematic, easy of reference and should be carefully preserved for future guidance. The system so necessary in other departments of business should be deemed just as essential in the department of advertising.

THE ODD PENNIES.

For the sake of saving odd pennies do not buy an inferior emulsion of cod-liver oil when you really need Scott's Emulsion.

Scott's Emulsion costs more to buy because it costs more to make.

The difference in price is pennies. The difference in results is pounds—pounds of flesh—and days of new strength and comfort.

The consumptive and others who have lost flesh get more cod-liver oil into their systems by means of Scott's Emulsion than in any other way.

Send for Free Sample.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, 409 Pearl St., N. Y.

A year for 20 years. A little later on the company might want $35 or even $50, and as shown above, the city would be helpless. It therefore behooves the people to accept this proposition. The city has nothing to lose. It will retain its option to purchase, secure a reasonable rate of rental for fire hydrants and a filtration plant which will give the people clear, pure water.

A LAST WORD.

The battle of the ballots will have been decided by the time The Sun appears again, and as a parting injunction it is urged that every citizen go to the polls tomorrow and cast his vote for municipal progress. To do this it will be necessary to vote for the $100,000 bond issue and the acceptance of the waterworks proposition. There is absolutely no valid reason for rejecting either, and there is abundant reason why both should carry.

Clear, pure water is something the people of Paducah have long wanted, and this is their first and may be their last opportunity to get it. Pure water will not only benefit the city from a sanitary standpoint, but a commercial one as well. It will be a vast benefit to every manufacturing using boilers, to every laundry and to every class of citizen who uses water for any purpose. The water rent is not to be raised, and cannot be raised. This rent is regulated by law and the average based on rates in certain other cities must be the rate charged here. The people have absolutely nothing to lose by accepting the proposition, and will by accepting it secure filtered water.

The bond issue is designed to give us good and beautiful streets, which will in themselves be a benefit to the whole city, and will at the same time save the taxpayers many thousands of dollars now wasted in costly but useless improvements. Louisville is tomorrow to vote nearly $3,000,000 in bonds for sewers and streets, which is conclusive proof of the efficacy of bond issues in securing extensive city improvements in other places. In fact, it is our only hope of ever getting them in Paducah, and every public-spirited citizen should vote for the bonds also. These are not political questions, but questions that men of all politics should favor.

THE DUTY OF CITIZENS.

The voters are reminded again of their duty to themselves and their families in placing men in public office. Those officials who ignore the law, increase the tax rate and waste the people's money are unfit to hold office, and in voting for them a man is injuring himself as well as others. We have a good city, and one that the proper kind of men can build up rapidly. The people, especially the taxpayers, know that the men put up by the Democrats have not attempted to build up Paducah and will not do it, and they should try the Republican ticket. It is believed that a better, more representative set of men could not be found in the district than those nominated by the Republicans.

Hon. C. H. Linn of Kuttawa is the nominee for congress, Judge P. H. Darby of Princeton for judge of the court of appeals, and the names of the gentlemen for aldermen and other city offices are to be found at the head of this column. They promise their constituents the best representation that is possible, for them to give, and this ought at least to be more than the Democrats have ever given.

Tomorrow go to the polls and vote out of office members of the party that bankrupted the city, and then to hold onto public office attempted to force Paducah back into the third class.

The Sun begs to take issue with a contemporary on the subject of the same men being in office after the election who are in office now. There are to be eight new aldermen as well as some other city officers elected tomorrow, and it will be seen that there are some new faces among the members of the board after election. The probability is that there will be enough progressive, law-abiding men elected tomorrow to effectually stop the impositions of the gang.

We are informed, it must have been ironically, that a vote for the Democratic ticket will be a vote for "well-governed Paducah." Yes, immensely well-governed! Look at the law suits, bond repudiation and bankruptcy that the people have had under Democratic rule. With a $1.85 tax rate now, another tax rate to be made in a few months and the city $80,000 in debt, this is a rather peculiar way to be "well-governed."

It is reported that County Judge Lightfoot will decide that the legislature had no constitutional right to impose a penalty for violating rules enacted by the board of health for the health, safety and general welfare of the public. If this should be sustained all boards of health might as well go out of business and let the people in their wisdom fight epidemics the best way they know how.

The fallacy of "expert" testimony is clearly revealed in the Molinoux trial for murder in New York. Two experts testified that certain writings was the work of the same person, and several other experts equally as reputable have testified for the defense that it is not. The facts in the case are that no human being knows except Molinoux himself, and he says it is not.

Grover Cleveland's speech is not being used as a campaign document by the Democrats. The Bryan element has discovered that he has not repented an iota. He sees a great many prospects, apparently, in Democracy's future, but the Democrats have been seeing these sort of things for many years.

It is the eve of election, and the Democrats all over the country have the usual amount of cheap enthusiasm on tap. The Republicans make their usual claims, which are always borne out by results. Just watch how things go tomorrow.

The public should remember that the water company's franchise has 20 years yet to run. The hydrant contract is what expires in a few years. A great many people have confused the two.

The council meets tonight. The saloon ordinance will come up again, and the public is wondering how many members have flopped since last meeting.

About Wednesday the Democrats will say it was due to "apathy."

BUILDING COMMITTEE.

MAKING A TOUR OF THE BUILDING THIS AFTERNOON.

Chairman Weille, of the building committee of the board of education, invited the other members of the board, and Health Officer Graves, to go on a tour of inspection this afternoon to all the school buildings and inspect the work that has been done. Health Officer Graves was invited to inspect the sanitary condition of the building. The patrol wagon was used for making the trip, and the party was quite a jolly one.

RANG THE CHURCH BELL.

And Sent in Order From Pew Twenty-One.

A belated tourist from Florida says that it is almost impossible to understand how great was the rush of visitors at the height of the season. He says that a man came one day to one of the big hotels and was told that there was no room for him in the house, but a place to sleep would be made up for him in the memorial chapel on the hotel grounds. He said that would suit him all right. By bed time he had all that was coming to him in the way of unsolicited refreshments. When he woke up in the morning he looked for a push button, and finding none he wandered out into the vestibule. There he saw the bell rope and tolled the bell until a man opened the door and asked him what was the matter.

"Bring me a cocktail and a siphon of carbonic, and be quick about it," said the guest, "and charge it to Pew 21."

REVIEWED BY MILES

THE LIEUTENANT GENERAL CHEERED IN MANILA'S STREETS.

Manila, Nov. 3.—Lieutenant General Miles, Major General Davis and the members of their respective staffs were heartily cheered yesterday when they reviewed a parade of the American troops and native contingents now in Manila. General Miles was greatly pleased with the appearance of the men, especially the native scouts. He said the showing made by these natives was beyond his expectations, and he was of the opinion that they would develop into good soldiers.

General Miles, accompanied by Governor Taft and many prominent officials, spent Sunday at the country home of Senor Rencamanhico director of the federal party.

The libel suit against the editor and proprietors of the Spanish newspaper, Libertad, which accused General Bell of stealing the profits from the sale of rice and foodstuffs in Batangas and Mindoro during the reconcentration period, came up in court here today. The Libertad is a firm's organ, and is strongly anti-American. The records show that General Bell turned over $66,000 to the credit of the provinces which he governed during that period, and that this money was appropriated a short time ago for the benefit of the poor. When General Bell saw the article in question he called Governor Taft's attention to it, and the suit was instituted.

Fr. Tamayo, the friar editor of the paper; Lay Brother Roca and the manager were called upon to plead to the charge. Their attorneys offered a plea of not guilty, and the three men were released on bonds of $2,000 each. It is probable that the government will institute proceedings against the editor and proprietors of the Renacimiento for publishing a similar, though less flagrant libel.

Chivalry Delayed the Train.

Frank C. Bangs, the veteran actor, is credited with telling of a professional trip through the south that involved an all-night ride in North Carolina. Along about 2 o'clock in the morning the train came to a standstill. The cessation of the noise of motion caused some of the more sensitive passengers to awaken; and they called out from behind the berth curtains to inquire the stopping place. No answer was vouchsafed them. After the train had been there ten or fifteen minutes one of Bangs's fellow actors pulled on his trousers and started to investigate, but the conductor was not to be found. An hour passed, with the passengers all grumbling at the delay, when the conductor stepped jauntily into the car, his lantern across his arm, and pulled the bell for the engineer to proceed. Questioned as to the delay, he explained:

"Well, a woman got off right here— it's a flag station. It was nearly 2 o'clock, gentlemen, and there was no body to meet her, so I offered her my escort as far as the house she was to stay at, and she was kind enough to accept. That was all, gentlemen."

AN UNFORTUNATE ACCIDENT.

Japanese Women Mix Up Order of European Costume.

It was Admiral Coghlan, who was with Dewey at Manila, brought home with him a lot of good stories, including one that illustrates how readily Japanese women take on occidental ideas as to costume. At an early day in the career of new Japan some ladies of Tokio decided to adopt Anglo-Saxon dress, and so they ordered elaborate wardrobes from Paris, sending explicit instructions that the garments should be packed in cases in the order in which they were to be worn. These orders were carefully carried out, luggage going into the boxes first, and so on to the ultimate outer flourishes and furbelows. But by some mischance the cases were labeled wrong side up, and the gulleless Japanese ladies proceeded in due time to array themselves in reverse order, with what results may be discreetly left to the imagination.

PROVED RIGHT TO ADMITTANCE.

Young Lawyer Convinced Doorkeeper of His Error.

Julius H. Wyman, a young corporation attorney of Baltimore, has so much the appearance of a minister of the Gospel that at the numerous conventions he is called to attend he is invariably asked to offer the opening prayer. Only once did this clerical appearance threaten to "debar" him.

The antipathy that the philanthropist Girard had to the ministerial profession is well known, and members of that holy calling are even now excluded from the university that bears his name. A short time ago Mr. Wyman visited the college. He was met at the door by the guardian, who, supposing him to be a preacher, said:

"No ministers allowed, sir!"

The young lawyer, surprised, grabbed him by the arm and cried:

"Who in— said I was a preacher?"

"Walk right in, sir; walk right in," was the good-natured remark of the doorkeeper, who smiled a broad, apologetic smile.

Roses in Cold Storage.

"The demand for roses is so great this summer," says a New York florist, "that to keep a fresh supply these willing days takes our ingenuity. It is a curious anomaly that the flower which unfolds its petals to the warmth of the sun is best preserved in an icy atmosphere. Where we keep our flowers one may pass from the burning heat of the street and experience the chill of winter amid the perfume of roses. We have a regular cold storage, huge blocks of ice on one side, and the walls lined with mirrors."

At one place, where roses abound in unfaded loveliness, their freshness is retained by keeping the stems in water. When the sediment collects upon the ends they are clipped and placed in fresh water. A pretty young woman who superintends the cut blossoms at a fashionable florist's, said: "We keep our roses by gathering them fresh from the plants. This is done twice a day, in the early morning, before the sun gets warm, and in the cool of the evening. We ship a great many roses, mostly to the south and west. There are now few orders from the north, for the roses there are fine in summer."

The American Beauty does not thrive so well in summer as in winter. The sun fades it into pink. But to those who love a red rose the liberty is the rose of the season, its coloring being exceedingly rich, brilliant and permanent.

A CONSTANT NERVOUS STRAIN

French and Italian Troops Nerve Relax Watchfulness.

An article in a French periodical draws attention to the peculiar nervous excitement which is said to be characteristic of the French troops on the Italian frontier. The officers feel that a constant strain is upon their attention and though qualities of vigor and alertness are aroused there is often a tendency toward exaggeration. It is in the Alps that the inquietude is greatest, as the available passes are few and if hostilities were intended the capture of one or more of them would be attempted. With this thought in their minds minute precautions are taken by officers and a state of great mental tension arises. A night surprise is what is always anticipated and the suggestion is made that good watchdogs, which would give tongue at the approach of any stranger would be a safeguard and would contribute to relieve the anxiety of officers and men in these lonely stations. To the ordinary citizen it is a matter for surprise that such a nervous strain should be felt in a time of profound peace.

WHY SHE WAS INDIGNANT.

Little Maid Wanted Time for Supplication to the Lord.

The small daughter of a Philadelphia dentist was recently sent on an all-summer visit to an aunt at Mead, Pa. The child had always been very devout, and at home had been in the habit of kneeling by her bed, saying a formal prayer aloud in her mother's hearing and then laudably adding a little invocation of her own composition. When bedtime came the first night at her aunt's, the child called the latter to hear her prayers. As usual when she had finished, she bowed her head in her hands and started on her whispered appeal. The aunt, not knowing the little one's habit, and thinking it a mere manifestation of sleepiness, said somewhat impatiently:

"Hurry, dear!—hurry!" "Hurry, dear!—hurry!" repeated the child, indignantly mimicking her aunt. Then, with pious scorn, she added: "What kind of a house is this, anyway? 'Hurry, dear!—hurry.' A person is not given time here to talk a minute with the Lord!"

RUNS THROUGH A DESERT.

Boundary Line Between Utah and Arizona Absolutely Uninhabitable.

A well-known civil engineer, H. B. Carpenter, who has recently completed the survey of the southern line of Utah, says the boundary between that state and Arizona does not cross a foot of cultivated land. It traverses a desert, which is cut up by great canyons that are almost impassable. The length of the line is 277 miles. Landmarks along the line will make it possible for the boundary to be located without any difficulty in the future. Just east of the Colorado river a sandstone butte rises 1,000 feet above the plain, and the very peak of this butte is exactly on the boundary. Mr. Carpenter named the peak State Line butte. Not far from this butte is another, which stands 1,300 feet above the plain, and was named Tower peak. These two gigantic stones will always be a guide to persons who have enough curiosity to penetrate the desert in search of the state line.

Diarrahl's Early Ideas.

The talk of expense incident to attendance at the coronation of King Edward recalls what Diarrahl wrote to a friend at the time Victoria was crowned: "I must give up going to the coronation, as all the members of parliament must be in court dresses or uniforms, and I can't afford to buy any. I console myself with the conviction that to get up at 7 o'clock, to sit dressed like a fop in Westminster abbey for seven or eight hours and to listen to a sermon by the bishop of London are treats which can be mined with fortitude." In later days, when Diarrahl had gone over from the radical camp to that of the Tories, whom he led as the earl of Beaconsfield, his views of such occasions probably had undergone some

COUNCIL MEETS.

REGULAR SESSION TONIGHT—SALOON ORDINANCE COMES UP.

The regular meeting of the council will be held tonight, with the usual amount of routine business to transact.

The ordinance for closing saloons at night in Paducah will come up at tonight's meeting of the council. It is impossible to foretell what its fate will be. The ordinance was presented at the last meeting, two weeks ago, and stipulated that the saloons should close at 10 p. m. and re-open at 6 a. m. It is proposed to change the time to 10:30 p. m. At the other meeting six voted against it. Councilman Woffolk was absent and is understood to favor 10:30, but if those who voted against the 10 o'clock closing vote against the one proposed to be introduced tonight, it will still be defeated, as the vote will be a tie.

Tonight it is understood that the committee will report in favor of not building a hill at Island creek and Sixth street, as the cost will approximate $1,000. Instead the bridge will be made passable. It was thought at first that the cost of a fill would be about $8,000.

MARRIAGES.

ONE ANNOUNCED AT THE ST. FRANCIS DE SALES CHURCH.

Announcement was made yesterday in the St. Francis De Sales church of the marriage of Miss May Griffin, daughter of Mr. Michael Griffin, the tobaccoist, and Mr. Adolph Surges, the well known butcher. The ceremony will take place some time this month. Both are popular young people.

A Marshall county couple eloped yesterday to Paris, Tenn., and were married. They were B. H. Ivey and Miss L. G. McGregor. Andy Cole and Miss Bonnie Wyatt, accompanied them. All live at Benton and went to Tennessee because they were too young to marry in Kentucky.

Mr. E. E. Vickers and Miss Ollie B. Parrish were married yesterday at the home of the bride. The groom is a well known young cooper and the bride a popular young lady of the South Side.

Mr. T. W. Sears and Miss Nancy Elizabeth Houser, who reside north of the city, were married Saturday evening at the bride's home on Jefferson street near Sixth.

SUES FOR SLANDER.

MARY HUDSON ASKS $5,000 FROM HENRY DENTON.

A rather sensational suit was this afternoon filed in circuit court by Attorney Lightfoot and Yonts for Mary R. Hudson, an infant, who sues through her guardian, B. F. Magruder. The suit was brought against Henry Denton and he is charged in the petition with having on several occasions made damaging statements against the girl's character, for which she asks $5,000. They all live near Woodville.

AN OLD RACKET SUCCESSFULLY PLAYED IN MARSHALL.

A shrewd swindler was through Marshall county recently taking orders for some big wholesale house in St. Louis, it is said. He sold bugles for $25 and $30, sewing machines for $8 and $10 and other things at correspondingly low prices. All he required was a small payment as a guarantee of good faith. A large number of people paid him from 50 cents to a few dollars. It will probably never be known just how many, but it is said the swindler made a good haul. Nothing has since been heard from him nor from the goods purchased.

THEATRICAL NEWS.

For years Harry Ward has been the leader of comedians in the minstrel line, and with the company with which he has surrounded himself this season he cannot fail to make a wonderful impression on the theater-loving people. The next president of minstrelsy comes to The Kentucky tonight. Harry Ward is his name. Everybody knows Harry Ward, and why should they not? He has yearly visited our city, and each time his versatility has made him more friends among the amusement lovers. Ward always has a few songs for us, and after he has left our city they linger in our ears for months, as the small boy always picks up the air and whistles them as he goes along. This year Ward has a magnificent company, and we will probably see a stronger minstrel show than has ever been played in the city. Seats on sale. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cents.

The Howard-Dorset company played to good business in Paducah, closing its engagement Saturday, and went from here to Evansville last evening.

The Howard-Dorset company beat its record this year at The Kentucky by about $300. The total receipts for the week were close onto $1,600.

It is understood Mr. H. J. Foppe will leave the "Down in Hopkins" company and go with the Rhodos-Burford company in Louisville.

BIG GAME ON THE DECREASE.

Hunters Are Rapidly Extirminating Wild Animals in Africa.

Mr. Belcher, consul at Belra, Africa, in his annual report says: As was reported last year, game in this district is still very much on the decrease, especially hartbeests, impala, buffalo, rusbuck, arthbe, bridled gnu, redbuck, eland, sable, rhinoceros, hippopotamus, and elephant. In fact, it is reported by professional hunters of experience that the five latter species will become in a very short time extinct unless some steps are taken to prevent natives and unprincipled white hunters from continuing their destruction. Chiringoma, a district under Chief Lubuko, formerly one of the best parts of the country for game, is gradually becoming devastated and it is possible now to hunt for days and days and not find any one of the last five-named species. A very complete set of game laws has been drawn up by the officials of the Mozambique company, and if rigorously put in force will no doubt still save the country as one of the best hunting grounds in East Africa.

ROMANCE OF THE HOSPITAL.

Original of "John Ridd" Dies in an English Poorhouse.

Readers of "Lorna Doone" put the volume down with a sigh of satisfaction, for is not the burly and athletic Devonshire yeoman at length safely wedded to the Exmoor maiden of his choice, and has not the king himself dubbed plain John Ridd "Sir John"? Yet how few of those who have read and re-read Blackmore's popular romance know the fate of the real John Ridd. He died in a London hospital—the Royal Hospital for incurables at Wandsworth. He was none other than John Barwell of Lyamouth, a strapping fellow who, stricken down with paralysis, sought refuge in 1896 in one of those homes for the afflicted which the benevolence of the age has dotted in and about London. At the time the hospital authorities did not know that they had in their kindly keeping the man whose acquaintance with the lore of Exmoor was turned to such brilliant account by Blackmore. It was not until after Barwell's death in 1899 that his identity with the hero in "Lorna Doone" was casually discovered.

WHAT GOOD MIGHT BE DONE

Anarchists and Automobileists Working Together for the Public.

The papers recently reported that a man in Meriden, Connecticut, who was said to be an anarchist, had blown his head off with a dynamite cartridge which he held between his teeth while the fuse was burning. "Americus," transmitting the record of this occurrence to the Weekly, says: "I encourage this interesting fact. I will be pleased to supply dynamite to any worthy anarchist needing it for purposes stated."

It is a generous offer, and is evidently prompted by public spirit. The trouble is that the habit of blowing one's head off is disorderly and not to be encouraged, even by an anarchist. Moreover, it is a pity to waste either the dynamite or the anarchist. Now if there was a fed among despondent anarchists for being run over by automobiles they might really help society, for it would lessen the number of anarchists, and at the same time embarrass the automobileists and teach them to run slow. —Harper's Weekly.

Arms and The Woman

By Harold MacGrath

Copyright, 1900, By Harold MacGrath.

"I will tell you all that has to be told. Here, there was once a happy family in the palace of the Hohenzollerns. The prince was rather wild, but he loved his wife. One day his cousin came to visit him. He was a fascinating man in those days, and few women were there who would not give an ear to his flatteries. He was often with the princess, but she loved him. One day an abnormal thing happened. This cousin loved the princess. She scorned him. As the prince was entering the boudoir this cousin, making out that he was unconscious of the husband's approach, took the princess in his arms and kissed her. The prince was too far away to see the horror in that he had been buried on the continent at his request, all of which was true, but only half of it. I did my best to keep the secret, but it finally came out. It was the topic in the clubs, for Hillars had been well known in political and literary circles. But in a month or so the affair subsided. The world never stops very long, even when it loses one of its best friends. One late October morning I received a note which read:

John Winthrop:
Dear Sir—I am in London for a few days, home-coming from a trip to Egypt, and as we are cousins and 'orphans, too,' I should like the pleasure of making your acquaintance. Trusting that I shall find you at leisure, I am, your humble servant,
Philip Pembroke.

He took the princess in his arms and kissed her.

his wife's face. He believed her to be a simpleton. That night he accused her. Her denials were in vain. He confronted her with his cousin, who swore before the immortal God himself that the princess had lain with him in his arms. From that time on the prince changed. He became reckless; he fell in with evil company; he grew to be a shameless ruffian, a man who brought his women into his wife's presence and struck her while they were there. And in his passions he called her terrible names. He made a vow that when children came he would make them things of scorn. In her great trouble the princess came to my inn, where the Princess Hildegard was born. The prince refused to believe that the child was his. My mistress finally sickened and died broken hearted. The prince died in a gambling den. The king became the guardian of the lonely child. He knows but little or he would not ask her highness. He stopped.

"He would not ask her what?"

"To tell the man who caused all this trouble."

"What! Prince Ernst?"

"Yes; I prayed to God, here, that your friend's bullet would carry death, but it was not to be."

"I am going back to London," said I.

"When I have settled up my affairs there, I shall return."

"And then?"

"Perhaps I shall complete what my friend began."

I climbed into the ramshackle conveyance and was driven away. Once I looked back. The innkeeper could be seen on the porch; then he became lost to view behind the trees. Far away to my left the stones in the little cemetery on the hillside shone with brilliant whiteness.

CHAPTER XVI.

There were intervals during the three months which followed when I believed that I was walking in a dream and waking would find me grubbing at my desk in New York. It was so unreal for these days—a mosaic romance in the heart of prosaic fact! Was there ever the like? It was real enough, however, in the daytime, when the roar of London hammered at my ears, but when I sat alone in my room I assumed the hazy garments of a dream. Sometimes I caught myself listening for Hillars, a footstep in the corridor, and I would take my pipe from my mouth and wait expectantly. But the door never opened, and the footsteps always passed on. Often in my dreams I stood by the river again. There is solace in these deep, wide streams. We come and go—our hopes, our loves, our ambitions. Nature alone remains. Should I ever behold Gretchen again? Perhaps. Yet there was no thrill at the thought. If ever I beheld her again, it would be when she was pinned beyond the glance of my eye, the touch of my hand. She was mine—aye, as a dream might be; something I possessed, but could not hold. Helgol! The faces that peer at us from the flight shadows! They troop along in a ghastly cavalcade, and the winds that creep over the window sill and under the door—who can say that they are not the echoes of voices we once heard in the past?

I was often on the verge of sending in my resignation, but I would remember in time that work meant bread and butter—and forgetfulness. When I returned to the office, few questions were asked, though my assistant looked many of them reproachfully. I told him that Hillars had died abroad and

"Ah," said I, "that Louisianian cousin of mine, who may or may not live the year out," recalling the old lawyer's words. "He seems to hang on pretty well. I hope he'll be interesting. Few rich men are. He writes like a polite creditor. What did the old fellow say was the matter with him? Heart trouble or consumption? I can't remember." I threw the note aside and touched up some of my dispatches. Precisely at 10 o'clock the door opened, and a man came in. He was fashionably dressed, a mixture of Piccadilly and Broadway in taste. He was tall, slender, but well formed, and his blond mustache shone out distinctly against a background of tanned skin. He had fine blue eyes.

"Have I the pleasure of speaking to John Winthrop of New York?" he began, taking off his hat.

I rose. "I am the man." He presented his card, and on it I read, "Philip Pembroke."

"Philip Pembroke?" I exclaimed.

"Evidently you are surprised?" showing a set of strong white teeth.

"Truthfully I am," I said, taking his hand. "You see," I added apologetically, "your family lawyer—that is—he gave me the—impression that you were a sickly fellow—one foot in the grave or something like that. I was not expecting a man of your build."

The smile broadened into a deep laugh, and a merry one, I thought enviously. It was so long since I had laughed.

"That was a hobby of the old fellow," he replied. "When I was a boy, I had palpitation of the heart. I never got rid of the idea that I might die at any moment. He was always warning me about violent exercises, the good old song, 'Peace to his ashes.'"

"He is dead?"

"Yes. When I took to traveling, he all but had nervous prostration. I suppose he told you about that will I made in your favor. It was done to please him. Still," he added soberly, "it stands. I travel a deal, and no one knows what may happen. And so you are the John Winthrop my dad treated so shabbily? Oh, don't protest; he did I should have hunted you up long ago and given you a solid bank account, only I knew that the son of my aunt must necessarily be a gentleman and therefore would not look favorably upon such a proceeding."

"Thank you," said I. The fellow pleased me.

"And then I did not know but what you cared nothing for money."

"True. A journalist doesn't care anything about money. The life is too easy and pleasant, and most of the things he needs are thrown in, as they say."

This hint of sarcasm did not pass. My cousin laughed again that merry laugh of his.

"I think we shall become great friends," he said. "I like frankness."

"My remark in its literal sense was the antithesis of frankness."

"Ah, you said too much not to be frank. Frankness is one of the reasons why I do not get on well with the women. I can't lie in the right place, and when I do it in generally ten times worse than the plain truth."

"You're a man of the world, I see."

"No; merely a spectator."

"Well, you have the price of admission. With me it's a free pass. Some day we will compare notes."

"Who is your banker?"

"Banker? I have none. I distrust banks. They take your mite and invest it in what notes, and sometimes when you go for it it is not there."

"And then again it multiplies so quickly that you have more than you know what to do with, eh?"

"As to that I cannot say. It is bearish, rumor. So far as I know it may be so. Experience has my number of teachers. The trouble is we cannot study under them all. Necessity has been my principal instructor. Sometimes she has lured me soundly, though I was a model scholar. You will go to luncheon with me?"

"If you will promise to dine with me this evening." And I promised.

For an hour or more we chatted upon congenial topics. He was surprisingly well informed. He had seen more of the world than I, though he had not observed it so closely. As we were about to leave the door opened, and Phyllis, Ethel and her husband, Mr. Holland, entered. For a moment the room was filled with the fragrance of October air and the essence of violets. They had been in town a week. They had been "doing" the Strand, so Ethel said, and thought they would make me a brief visit to see how "it was done."

the foreign corresponding. Mr. Wentworth and his wife were already domiciled at B—, and the young people were going over to enjoy the winter festivities. Phyllis was unchanged. How like Gretchen, I thought.

While Ethel was engaging my cousin's attention I conducted Phyllis through the office.

"What a place to work in!" said Phyllis, laughing. The laugh awakened a vague thrill. "Dust, dust—everywhere dust. You need a woman to look after you, Jack."

As I did not reply, she looked quickly at me, and, seeing that my face was grave, she flushed.

"Forgive me, Jack," impulsively, "I did not think."

I answered her with a reassuring smile.

"How long are you to remain in town?" I asked to disengage her.

"We leave day after tomorrow, Saturday—a day or two in Paris, and then we go on. Every one in New York is talking about your book. I knew that you were capable."

"I hope every one is buying it," said I, passing over her last observation.

"Was it here that you wrote it?"

"Oh, no. It was written in my rooms under the most favorable circumstances."

"I thought so. This is a very dreary place."

"Perhaps I like it for that reason."

Her eyes were two interrogations, but I pretended not to see.

"What nice eyes your cousin has," she said, side glancing. With a woman it is always a man's eyes.

"And his father was the man who left you the fortune?"

"Yes," I answered, with a short laugh. Of course I had never told Phyllis of that thousand dollar check.

"You must run over this winter and see us," she said. "I anticipate nothing but dinners, balls and diplomatic receptions. I have never been there. It will all be new to me. Think of seeing Egypt, the holy lands, Russia, France and Spain and yet not feeling the very heart of the continent! Think goodness, I know the language."

"And will she not be a sensation?" joined in Ethel.

"A decided sensation," said I, scrutinizing the beautiful face so near me. What if they met, as probably they would—Phyllis and Gretchen? "Phyllis," said I suddenly, "where were you born?"

"Where was I born?" with a wondering little laugh. "In America. Where did you suppose?"

"Eden," said I. "I wasn't sure, so I asked."

"I do not know how to take that," she said, with mock severity.

"Oh, I meant Eden when it was paradise," I hastened to say.

"Yes," put in Pembroke. "Please go back, Miss Landers, and begin the world all over again."

"Phyllis," said I in a whisper, "have you ever met that remarkable affinity of yours?" I regretted the words the moment they had crossed my lips.

"Yes, you are changed, as I said the other night," I distrustedly. "There is something in your voice that is changed. You have grown cynical. But your question was impertinent. Have you found yours?"

I was expecting this. "Yes," I said. "Once I thought I had; now I am sure of it. Some day I shall tell you an interesting story."

"We came up to ask you to dine with us this evening," she said, trailing her brown glove finger over the dusty desk. "Are you at liberty?"

"No; I have only just met my cousin and have promised to dine with him."

"If that is all, bring him along. I like his face."

We passed out of the filerom.

"Phyllis, we must be going, dear," said Ethel.

I led Phyllis down the narrow stairs. A handsome victoria stood at the curb.

"I shall be pleased to hear your story," said she.

It occurred to me that the tale might not be to her liking, so I said, "But it is one of those disagreeable stories—ones where all should end nicely, but doesn't; one which ends leaving the hero, the heroine and the reader dissatisfied with the world in general and the author, who is fate, in particular."

I knew that she was puzzled. She wasn't quite sure that I was not referring to the old affair.

"If the story is one I never heard before," auspiciously, "I should like to hear it."

"And does it not occur to you," throwing back the robes so that she might step into the victoria, "that fate has a special grudge against me? Once was not enough, but it must be twice."

"And she does not love you? Are you quite sure? You poor fellow!" She squeezed my hand kindly. "Shall I be candid with you?" with the faintest flicker of coquetry in her smile.

"As in the old days," said I, glancing over my shoulder to see how near the others were. A groom is never to be considered. "Yes, as in the old days."

"Well, I have often regretted that I did not accept you as an experiment."

Then I knew that she did not understand.

"You must not think I am jesting," said I seriously. "The story is of the bitter-sweet kind. The heroine loves me, cannot be mine."

"Love you?" with a slight start.

"How do you know?"

"She has told me so," lowering my voice.

Frankness of this sort to a woman who has rejected you has a peculiar effect. The coquetry faded from her smile, and there was a perceptible contraction of the brows. Her eyes, which were looking into mine, shifted to the back of the groom. No, I shall never understand a woman. She should have been the most sympathetic woman in the world, yet she appeared to be annoyed.

"What's all this between you and Phyllis?" asked Ethel, coming up.

"There is nothing between her and me," said I.

"Well, there should be," she retorted. "That is the trouble."

My observation was: "I have always held that immediately a woman gets married she makes it her business to see that all old bachelors are lugged out and disposed of to old maids."

"I shall never forgive that," Phyllis declared; "never."

"Then I shall always have the exquisite pleasure of being a supplicant for your pardon. It is delightful to see pardon of a beautiful woman."

Phyllis smiled.

"Forgive him at once," said Ethel. "If only for that pretty speech."

Mr. Holland pulled out his watch suggestively.

"Well," I said, "I see that I am keeping you from your lunch. Goodbye, then, till dinner, when I shall continue at length on the evils—"

"William," interrupted Ethel, addressing the groom, "drive on."

And so they left us.

"Shall we go to lunch now?" I asked of Pembroke.

"Yes," rather dreamily, I thought.

"Do you know," with sudden animation, "she is a remarkably beautiful woman?"

"Yes, she is." After all, the sight of Phyllis had rather upset me.

"I had a glimpse of her in Vienna last winter," went on Pembroke. "I never knew who she was."

"Vienna?" I exclaimed.

"Yes. It was at a concert. Her face was indelibly graven on my memory. I asked a neighbor who she was, but when I went to point her out she was gone. I should like to see more of her."

So Gretchen had been in Vienna, and poor Hillars had never known.

I took Pembroke to the club that afternoon, and we dined in the billiard room till time to dress for dinner. Dinner came. But Phyllis forgot to ask me about the story, at which I grew puzzled, considering what I know of woman's curiosity. And she devoted most of her time to Pembroke, who did not mind. Later we went to the theater—some production of Gilbert and Sullivan. Whenever I glanced at Phyllis I felt to wondering how Gretchen would have looked in evening dress. Yes, Phyllis was certainly beautiful, uncommonly. For years I had worshipped at her shrine, and then—how little we know of the heart! I was rather abstracted during the performance, and many of my replies went wide of the mark.

As we were leaving the foyer Phyllis said, "Jack, a man has been staring me out of countenance."

"Pembroke?" I laughed.

"No. And, moreover, the stare was accompanied by the most irritating sneer."

"Point him out to me when we reach the street," I said, humoring what I thought to be a fancy, "and I'll put a head on him."

The sneer was probably meant for an ogle. Beauty has its annoyances as well as its compensations. As we came under the glare of the outside lights Phyllis' hand tightened on my arm.

"Look! There he is, and he is making for us."

At the sight of that face, with its hooked nose, its waxed mustache and imperious, I took a deep breath and held it. In the quick glance I saw that his right arm hung stiffly at his side. I attempted to slip into the crowd, but without success. He lifted his hat, smiling into the astounded face of Phyllis.

"The Princess Hildegard!" But with those three words the sentence on his lips came to an end. Amazement replaced the smile. He stepped back. Phyllis' eyes expressed scornful surprise. What she understood to be rudeness I knew to be a mistake. He had mistaken her to be Gretchen, just as I had mistaken Gretchen to be Phyllis. It was a situation which I enjoyed. All this was but momentary. We passed on.

"Was the man crazy?" asked Phyllis as we moved toward the carriages, where we saw Pembroke waving his hand.

"Not exactly crazy," I answered.

"The Princess Hildegard. Did he not call me that?"

"He did."

"He must have mistaken me for some one else, then."

"The very thing," said I. "I wonder what he is doing here in London?"

"Mercy! Do you know him?"

"Slightly." We were almost at the carriage. "I am sorry to say that he is a great personage in this very court which you are so soon to grace."

He lifted his hat, smiling into the astonished face of Phyllis.

"How strange! I'm afraid we shall get on."

Pembroke and I dismissed our carriage. We were going back to the club. Ethel and her husband were already seated in their carriage.

Said Phyllis as I assisted her to enter. "And who is this Princess Hildegard?"

"The most beautiful woman in all the world," I answered, with enthusiasm. "You will meet her also."

SECY ROSEVEAR

State Officer of the Y. M. C. A., is Coming the 14 th.

Good Crowd Out Yesterday—Matters of Interest at Association Building.

Rev. J. D. Bow, of Louisville, talked to the men at the Y. M. C. A., yesterday afternoon beginning at 3:30 on "Men of Reality" and his discourse was of the highest class and greatly enjoyed by all who heard him. After the address a Bible class meeting was held and later a social hour which was followed at 5:30 by the social lunch to which all persons are invited. This was well attended.

Tomorrow night will be open to visitors who care to see the gymnasium work.

Tomorrow night the orchestra will be called together for first rehearsal and business meeting. There are about ten members all told and the orchestra will be a go.

The latter part of the week there will be a basket ball game between an association team and an outside team. This promises to be exciting and visitors will probably be invited to see the sport.

Friday the social stag party will be given and this will be one of the features in entertainments this month.

Secretary H. E. Rosevear, the state secretary, will be here on the 14th to meet with the board of directors of the association. There is nothing of any importance attached to his visit other than the regular examination into the progress made at the association.

ACTIVE WORK

Engineer and Superintendent for Steam Heating Plant Here.

Work Will Begin at Once and be Pushed Rapidly in Business Part.

Mr. W. J. Kline and wife of Lockport, N. Y., are at the Palmer for a few weeks. Mr. Kline is engineer for the big concern that has the contract for building the steam heating plant in Paducah, and will begin work at once.

Mr. J. H. Fenwick of Bowling Green, who is quite well known in Paducah, the superintendent of the work, is in the city also, and will assist Mr. Kline in preparing things for the beginning.

Mr. Fitch, the projector, is not in the city, but is expected in a few days. These gentlemen, as soon as they finish the preliminary work, will have a large force of men put to work placing in the system.

As stated some time ago, the harness part of the city will receive attention first and later the residence portions. Owing to the shortness of time the power house will not be built this year, but heat will be secured from the street railway power house.

QUARTERLY COURT.

AN ATTACHMENT AGAINST WALTER WILKINS WAS DISMISSED.

Judge Lightfoot this morning convened quarterly court but nothing of importance was done.

In the matter of the attachment in the case of Morgan and Wright against Walter Wilkins, the attachment was released as there was no evidence to prove that the gasoline boat attached, was the property of the defendant. The owners of the boat were unable to see it as it was under attachment. There is some talk of a damage suit resulting from the attachment but the report could not be confirmed. It was said that the owners of the craft intended to sue for damages alleging that the boat was not placed in the care of watchmen, for which the law provides.

RAILROAD NOTES

The Inspection Will Take Place Here Nov 10th.

Dispatcher J. B. Alvey Goes to Fulton to Accept a Position.

The regular annual inspections will be made of the local shops and Illinois Central system on the night of the 10th. The inspection train will arrive here on the night of the 9th and the inspection will be made as soon as possible. The trainmasters, roadmasters, superintendents and section men are with the train and all make a tour of the other divisions with the higher officials.

Many Paducahans remember that genial conductor, Mr. Barney Blaney, who ran into Paducah several years ago on the St. Louis division of the Illinois Central, and they will be pleased to learn that he is again running into Paducah. Conductor A. M. Dowell has been transferred to a run between Centralia and Cairo. Mr. Blaney is liked by all who know him, and it is hoped will run in regularly.

Mr. J. B. Alvey has gone south to Fulton to work as third trick dispatcher at that place. It is understood that the trick dispatcher who was responsible for the Boaz wreck resigned immediately after the wreck and that Mr. Alvey will work in his place.

Messrs. John Trantham, C. A. Clagart, Sam Steinberger, John Kerr and James Crosby have returned from Chicago full-fledged engineers for the Illinois Central. They successfully passed the examination on air, having previously passed other examinations.

Train No. 103, the noon passenger train was delayed over four hours yesterday by the Boaz wreck, and did not get into Paducah until 4 o'clock. She had to come over the N., C. and St. L. tracks.

The night telegraph station lately opened at Woodstock, Tenn., on the Illinois Central, has been closed and one opened at Water Valley instead.

Trainmaster T. A. Banks, of Princeton, is in the city today on business. His wife arrived this morning from Princeton to visit friends.

Mr. William McCreery, traveling engineer of the Louisville division of the Illinois Central, was in the city today on business.

Dispatcher Allan Jorgenson, of Princeton, was in the city today on business. He returned at noon.

Mr. O. J. Travis, superintendent of bridges of the Illinois Central, was in the city today on business.

Supervisor Martin Oraben was in the city today. He returned to the Louisville division at noon.

EVERYTHING TIGHT.

EXCEPT A FEW TOPERS WHO HAD TO GO DRY YESTERDAY.

The saloons were all closed yesterday and no warrants have been issued for either selling at saloons or drug stores. It was "tight" everywhere. One traveling man who has been in the habit of coming to Paducah to enjoy a quiet little lonesome on Sunday learned with disgust that everything was closed when he arrived at 1:20 o'clock yesterday morning, and taking the 4 o'clock train for Mayfield, his local option neighbor, he bought a gallon and returned at 7:45 yesterday morning. Needless to say, his friends were very glad to see him.

NEW GOULD LINE

CONNECTING SOUTHERN ILLINOIS COAL FIELDS WITH THE OHIO RIVER.

Carbondale, Ill., Nov. 3.—Announcement has been made of the building of a new railroad connecting the Southern Illinois coal fields with the Ohio river and giving the industry a new market in the east. The new line is believed to be the second connected with the Gould interests tapping the section and is known as the Johnson City, Harrisburg and Ohio river railroad. It connects with both the Chicago and Eastern Illinois and the Illinois Central railroad at Johnson City.
